

Beauty Snob

organicare: the future of skincare

By Beauty Snob Tina on December 8, 2008 12:00 PM

We are really into organic skincare and cosmetics right now. It's kind of like eating organic vegetables, you're not really sure if it is better than the regular stuff but just in case it is, you don't want to miss out!

One of the most comprehensive lines of organic skin care is from none other than the beautiful Jamie O'Banion. We reviewed her Jamie O line last year and have been enamored with her ever since. The new line, called Organicare, is made of 100% USDA approved organic ingredients.

We are obsessed with "Rescue Me", an Acai Berry Anti-aging serum that contains the purest concentrated form of the high antioxidant Acai berry. It is also packed with vitamins B and E as well as omega 6 and 9 fatty acids. It all sounds like a delicious shake but it is fat free so go ahead and apply often.

At Organicare website.

Tell me, what do you think of organic products?

<http://www.beautysnob.com/2008/12/organicare.the.future.of.skinc.html>