

SCOOP: Organic skin care

Happy Friday to all of my eco-chic readers! Horrified by my last blog? Did you have any idea that we were putting so many chemicals on (and therefore in) our well-toned, healthy-fed bodies? EEEEEK! And it is not even Halloween! Well never fear, Green Stiletto is here and I will introduce you to my favorite new line, which is, by the way, a local company—organicare.

We look for it on our milk, why don't we look for it in our skin care? Yep, this is the first line to be certified as USDA organic.... ooh, it is like my skin has been eating fast food all of it's life and it just sat down to a five star organic meal.... aaaaahh... the Aloe Vera mantra (one of it's main ingredients).

This line is as eco-chic as it gets, all of the packaging is made with hydropower or wind energy in a carbon neutral facility. Of course, it is NEVER tested on animals, because if it's not good for kitty it's not good for missy! So don't be afraid of the cream you slather on before you get some Z's going bump in the night. Throw away the 'fastfood' chemical-laden skin care and add some green.... your skin will breathe easier and your body will thank you for it

So what do you think?

Ciao for now!

Posted by Sandra Witten at 10/24/2008 12:18 PM

<http://www.pinkmemo.com/dallas/blog/ViewBlog.aspx?Post.id=269>